BROWN RENAMED FOR CHAIRMAN OF STATE COMMITTEE

Toledoan Wins Personal Victory at Republican Convention.

TAFT ADHERENTS IN SADDLE

Elect 11 Out of 21 Members on Each Committee and Secure Adoption of Resolution Indorsing His Administration—Names of President and Colonel Roosevelt Loudly Cheered When Mentioned by Speakers—Will Name Ticket After Chicago Meeting

Columbus, O., June 4. — Although the Taft men won out in the district caucuses by securing control of all committees connected with the Republican state convention, and also the new central committee, they failed to prevent the re-election of Walter F. Brown of Toledo as chairman of the state central committee when that body was organized. Three Taft men voted for Mr. Brown, as follows: Maurice Maschke and A. N. Rodway of Cuyahoga and S. M. Granger of Muskingum county.

Sherman Eagle of Gallia county and I. M. Foster of Athens, Roosevelt men, were re-elected vice chairman and secretary, respectively, without opposition.

The margin of control in the big committee is just one. Taft supporters have 11 and Roosevelt supporters 10 on the central committee and on the credentials committee. The resolutions committee stands 12 to 9 in favor of Taft.

When the convention reconvened this morning, the completion of Ohio's "Big Six" to the national convention at Chicago was still in doubt, with chances favoring the president. Taft adherents claim 410 to 415 delegates, while State Chairman Brown of the Roosevelt forces persists in his claim of 418 and asserts that quiet changes are being made. Roosevelt delegates will attempt a final assault on the Taft position, which seemed to be strengthened by Taft victories in the district caucuses.

Both Names Cheered.

When the convention opened Chairman Walter F. Brown of the state committee and manager of the Roosevelt candidacy made a complimentary reference to Colonel Roosevelt. The Roosevelt men greeted the mention of the colonel's name with prolonged applause. On the mention of President Taft's name there was another outburst. Senator Burton delivered the keynote speech and, among other things, urged federal incorporation act and workmen's compensation laws.

The Taft men were cheered by the action of a majority of the resolutions committee in indorsing the president's administration. Roosevelt members of the committee are to turn in a minority report. The president dominated the credentials committee, which seated 11 Taft delegates in the only two contested counties, Lawrence and Crawford. Roosevelt men failed to bring a contest in Union county, in which a rump convention was held.

It was said that many Taft delegates would regard Mr. Brown's election as a signal that the Cuyahoga leaders were ready to quit the president, even though Mr. Brown modestly counted it only a personal victory and Maurice Maschke, organization leader in Cuyahoga county, declared that he was still loyal to Taft.

Roosevelt forces put one over on the Taft men in the committee on rules and order of business. The regular rules were adopted with the exception of an amendment, secured by Samuel Cohen of the Ninth district. This amendment permits any delegate to challenge the vote of any county in the convention. Heretofore only a member of a delegation might challenge a county's vote.

The practical effect of the rule is that the vote of every Taft delegation will have to be polled and individual members will be given an opportunity to express their preferences. The rule is somewhat disconcerting to Taft men who depended on county bosses to hold wavering delegations in line.

Taft Men Win Easily.

Taft men won easily in the credentials committee when seats were given in the Republican state convention to the Babst-Beer-Taft faction in Crawford county and to the Johnson-Taft faction in Lawrence county. The Roosevelt men's claims for right to sit were rejected by a vote of 19 to 2 in the case of Lawrence county and by 12 to 9 in the case of Crawford county. The results net the Taft managers 11 votes in the convention, if the whole body confirms the action of the credentials committee. Similar action was taken by the old central committee.

Both contests will be carried to the floor of the convention and a hot fight will be made. The rollcalls offer the first test of power between the rival factions. The Taft men controlled the credentials committee, 11 to 10, and elected Ernest von Bargen chairman. The sessions were held behind closed doors.

Probably one of the hottest committee fights waged between the Taft and Roosevelt people was that fought at the Chittenden hotel at the meeting of the committee on resolutions over the proposed adoption of a plank indorsing the administration of President Taft. J. Warren Keifer of Springfield was elected chairman of the committee.

Roosevelt members demanded that no action whatever be taken, but the Taft men demanded an indorsement of the administration and got it by a vote of 12 to 9. The Roosevelt members adjourned to the Neil House to prepare a minority report indorsing Colonel Roosevelt, which will be presented on the floor of the convention today for adoption.

Resolution Is Brief.

The resolution indorsing the Taft administration, as adopted by the majority, follows:

"Resolved, That we heartily indorse the administration of President William H. Taft."

This was the only resolution adopted.

The Roosevelt members sought to block action by offering the following resolution:

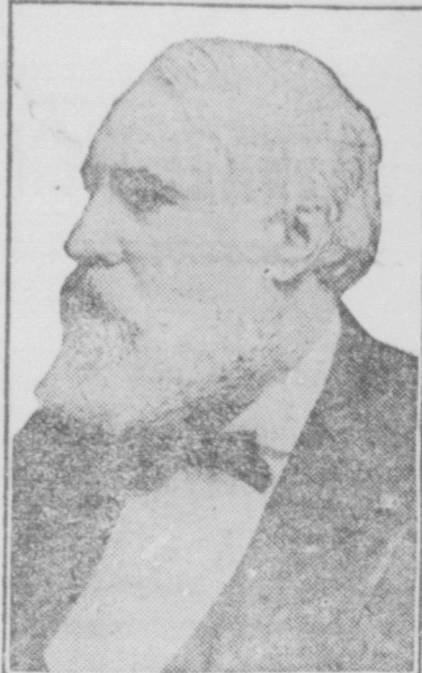

"Resolved, That we defer the presentation of any resolutions or platform and ask further time for the presentation of our report until after the national convention shall have adjourned, and that a subcommittee of five, with our chairman acting ex-officio, be authorized to prepare and submit a set of resolutions to this committee at its next session for its consideration."

The resolution was amended by the Taft members so as to make way for the resolution indorsing the president. After adoption of the amendment the resolution making the indorsement was adopted. The vote was 12 to 9.

William Alexander of the Second Cincinnati district at first played with the Roosevelt men in opposing the resolution indorsing the Taft administration, but voted for it on rollcall. He declared that he was a staunch Taft supporter and would fight for him to the last on the floor of the convention, but thought it bad policy for the committee to adopt resolutions indorsing any candidate. He said he would precipitate a fight

Toledo, O., June 4.—When the state central committee met at the Secor at 10 o'clock this morning the wheels of the Democratic state convention were set in motion. The delegates for the 21 districts met at 2 this afternoon to name on member of the state central committee, one vice president of the convention and one member each of the following committees: resolutions, credentials, permanent organization, and rules and order of business. These standing committees will meet at 4:30 o'clock, immediately after adjournment of the district meetings.

The convention proper will be called to order in the Terminal auditorium at 7:30 o'clock this evening, and until permanent organization is completed the temporary officers appointed by the state central committee will have charge. They are: Chairman, George S. Long of Piqua; secretary, George B. Christian of Marion; sergeant-at-arms, James A. Devine of Cleveland. Committee reports will be received at this session and the keynote speech of the temporary chairman delivered.

The big fight of the convention centers on the unit rule, the adoption of which the Harmon supporters insist they will force through, thereby instructing all delegates from the state of Ohio to the national convention to vote for Harmon and that the entire delegation of 48 be voted as a unit for Harmon.

At the primary elections the Democratic voters elected 19 Wilson delegates and 23 Harmon delegates. The state convention will select the six delegates-at-large.

Insurance Commissioner Ed H. The election of delegates by the people by districts is simply a matter of selection."

Says They Will Fight.

"We will make the fight for the solid delegation from Ohio for Harmon," said Ben Chamberlain, Governor Harmon's active representative, "and we have the votes to put it over, too. The preferential vote decided that."

"They can't pass the unit rule," said W. L. Finley, one of the anti-Harmon leaders, "and I don't think they will try. If they did pass it, it would just tear things wide open and carry the fight to Baltimore."

The nominating convention will be called to order at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. So far only two active candidates for the gubernatorial nomination have put in an appearance. They are Congressman James Cox of the Dayton district and General O. W. Hughes of the state railway commission.

Secretary of State Charles H. Graves of Oak Harbor, Attorney General Timothy Hogan of Wellston, School Commissioner Frank W. Miller of Dayton, Dairy and Food Commissioner S. E. Strode of Gallon and Frank E. McKean of Cleveland, clerk of the supreme court, will have no opposition.

Candidates for other offices whose names will be presented to the convention are: For auditor of state, B. J. McKinney, Marietta; John Dodds, Circleville. For supreme judges, Joseph W. O'Hara, Cincinnati; John W. Winn, Defiance county, member of the constitutional convention. For member of the board of public works, Bernard Doran, Congo; W. H. Ferguson, Springfield. For congressman-at-large, Robert Crosser, Cuyahoga county delegate in the constitutional convention; George B. Seney, Columbus; W. A. Aisdorf, Licking county.

Cotton Mill For Ohio Pen

Columbus, O., June 4.—A large cotton mill, where the raw material will be carded and spun into sheeting, may prove to be the solution of the convict labor question, which is now occupying the time of the state board of administration. Thomas E. Davey and Dr. Arthur F. Shepherd, members of the board, left for the New York state prison at Sing Sing with a view to studying the proposition.

Toledo, O., June 4.—When the state central committee met at the Secor at 10 o'clock this morning the wheels of the Democratic state convention were set in motion. The delegates for the 21 districts met at 2 this afternoon to name on member of the state central committee, one vice president of the convention and one member each of the following committees: resolutions, credentials, permanent organization, and rules and order of business. These standing committees will meet at 4:30 o'clock, immediately after adjournment of the district meetings.

The convention proper will be called to order in the Terminal auditorium at 7:30 o'clock this evening, and until permanent organization is completed the temporary officers appointed by the state central committee will have charge. They are: Chairman, George S. Long of Piqua; secretary, George B. Christian of Marion; sergeant-at-arms, James A. Devine of Cleveland. Committee reports will be received at this session and the keynote speech of the temporary chairman delivered.

The big fight of the convention centers on the unit rule, the adoption of which the Harmon supporters insist they will force through, thereby instructing all delegates from the state of Ohio to the national convention to vote for Harmon and that the entire delegation of 48 be voted as a

At the primary elections the Democratic voters elected 19 Wilson delegates and 23 Harmon delegates. The state convention will select the six delegates-at-large.

Insurance Commissioner Ed H.

Harmon campaign here, said: "The people at the preferential primary declared for Governor Harmon as their presidential nominee, and we propose to see that their will is carried out. The election of delegates

"We will make the fight for the

"They can't pass the unit rule," said W. L. Finley, one of the anti-they will try. If they did pass it, it would just tear things wide open and carry the fight to Baltimore."

The nominating convention will be called to order at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. So far only two active candidates for the gubernatorial nomination have put in an appearance.
They are Congressman James Cox of the Dayton district and General
O. W. Hughes of the state railway commission.

Secretary of State Charles H.

School Commissioner Frank W. Mil-

Candidates for other offices whose names will be presented to the convention are: For auditor of state, B.

PETITION TO PAVE RAWLINGS STREET

Property Owners Ask Council to

COUNCIL HAS BUSY SESSION

Annexed District Citizens Up in Arms Over Delay in Extending Water Mains and Lights—Many Matters of Importance to Washington Citizens Come Before Council Last Night.

Another interesting session of the City Council was held Monday night, with all members present except Cox. A number of visitors were present, interested in various propositions, and as usual, most of them were compelled to stand, owing to the scarcity of chairs.

The first business taken up was a petition presented by Herbert Brownell asking that Rawlings street be paved with the best quality of paving brick and stone curb constructed for a distance of four squares, or from North street to Delaware street, the street to be 26 feet in width.

The petition was signed by more than the required number of property owners, and Rothrock moved that the petition be referred to a committee and that the improvement be allowed as quickly as possible so that it could be completed this summer. Durant suggested that the petition be turned over to the engineer and that he prepare plans and specifications, and that the solicitor be instructed to prepare an ordinance covering the improvement. Rothrock changed his motion to conform with Durant's suggestion, and it passed by unanimous vote.

Alonzo J. Thompson, representing Imperial Degree Staff, asked permission for all street privileges on July 4th, and upon motion by McLean this was granted.

Pope Gregg, on behalf of the Humane Society, asked what action had been taken toward allowing the $10 per month requested some time ago. The committee had not reported, and upon motion by Sheets more time was granted them.

Frank Curl addressed Council, stating that just one year ago he had appeared before Council, representing citizens of the outlying districts, and that promises of extending the water mains and installing electric lights had been made, and that promises of immediate attention were made during the campaign last fall, and all had not been fulfilled, and that as the citizens of the English addition felt entitled to both water and light, that they now demanded action.

A demand for water and light was then read. This was signed by residents of five streets. It was referred to the Public Service Committee for investigation.

More time being asked by the committee on the Traffic Ordinance, it was granted upon motion by Veail.

A lengthy protest signed by Post & Reid as attorneys, for O. H. Robbins, was read by the clerk. In the statement further protest was made against the High Street Improvement which was petitioned for some time ago, and later a remonstrance was circulated and presented to Council. Mr. Robbins and his attorneys claimed that the action of assessing the property was clearly illegal and went into detail to state why. The communication, upon motion by Veail, was referred to the Law and Ordinance committee to report upon at the next meeting.

Engineer Jacobs reported that nothing had been done on Sycamore street and Circle avenue, whereupon Rothrock made a motion to grant the Engineer and Solicitor a month more time. The Solicitor stated that five minutes would be all the time he desired to draw up the resolution, as he had not been notified that a resolution had been asked for at the last meeting. It was argued that a month was too long to postpone action, and a tie vote resulted when Rothrock's motion was put. Veail, Chapman and Durant voting no.

Durant then moved that the Engineer and Solicitor be given until the next meeting to make report. Sheets and Rothrock then voted no, but the motion prevailed.

The Market street sidewalk improvement was next considered, Rothrock stating that the committee had not reported, but the improvement was needed. A motion to place the resolution on its third reading was made and carried.

Although the motion carried the reading was overlooked, and the third reading did not take place.

McLean reported that a meeting with the Township Trustees had been held and plans for buying additional ground were discussed. A short recommendation was read in which the land through which Paint creek runs immediately east of the cemetery, was favored.

Rothrock moved that a joint session of Council and Union township trustees be held at seven o'clock on the first Monday evening in July. This carried.

A report was then read from Mayor Smith. The report was made out on a monthly report blank, but covered the months of January, February and March. The report shows four fines and four licenses, three of the fines being for $9.15, one for $7.00 and the license $1 each, making a total of $38.45.

The report was accepted. Auditor Pine's monthly report was read, and shows $3,315.79 on hands at least report; $2663.34 received; $2316.93 expended, and a balance of $3662.20 on hands May 31st.

The question of letting the legal printing at competitive bidding was next taken up. This had been explained at some length by the City Solicitor at the meeting on May 14th. Holding that the resolution was virtually the same as an ordinance, Mayor Smith vetoed the resolution and gave the following statement, which was read by the clerk.

To the Honorable Council, Washington, Ohio.

Gentlemen:—I herewith state several reasons for my objections to the resolution passed at a special meeting of Council on the 14th day of May, 1912:

First—It is my best judgment that said resolution was passed illegally. Should have been passed under suspension of the rule of Council, or at three separate and distinct meetings.

Second—Resolution is one of permanent nature, directing the letting of public printing by contract and must be published.

Third—A former resolution to rent the McLellan room was of an identical nature, was read at three separate and distinct meetings and required nearly three months of legal grind before it could be closed up.

Fourth—Council Rule (20) directs that all ordinances shall be in the hands of a proper committee at least three days before Council meets. This would include a resolution which is of a similar nature.

Fifth—The resolution can be of no effect whatever, even if it was passed legally; it directs that Council shall contract for the public printing, where no such power is vested in City Council, they being but a legislative body only.

Sixth—The resolution is not a fair one for it puts public printing at competition for the Republican newspapers and leaves no competition for the single Democratic paper and the Daily Herald, which is an independent.

Seventh—Lastly, the hurried manner and the way it was driven through Council does not meet with my approval, and should have been more carefully considered.

I therefore veto the resolution.

Yours very truly,
HARVE W. SMITH, Mayor.
Vetoed May 23, 1912.

Rothrock then spoke of having a new resolution prepared by Mr. Gregg, and moved that it be placed upon its first reading. The ordinance empowering the Service Director to contract for all the legal printing, was read for the first time, and upon motion by Veail it was referred to the Law and Ordinance committee.

Rothrock then mentioned an error having been made in the South Sycamore street assessment in which action had been made exempting a certain portion of foot frontage from one of the railroads, and asked that it be rectified. The Surveyor and Solicitor were instructed to investigate and report.

Street improvement was next taken up by Rothrock who stated that some of the streets are a disgrace to the city, citing Main street in front of the Cherry Hotel as a sample. He favored the issuance of $5,000 in bonds to make necessary repairs, and thought a committee should be appointed to investigate the feasibility of laying brick centers in some of the streets. Rothrock, Durant and McLean were appointed to investigate and report at the next meeting.

Chapman inquired if the clerk had received any communication from the B. & O. relative to the improvement of Paint street. He had not. Chapman asked if the engineer had completed plans and specifications and the solicitor the necessary ordinance for the improvement opposite the B. and O. They had not been notified of Council's action, they stated.

Chapman moved that the sidewalk from Pierce's alley to the Dayton avenue bridge be improved, and this was added to the other improvements ordered.

Plans and specifications have been completed by the engineer, a resolution was passed for the improvement of South Main street by laying cement sidewalks from the Pennsylvania railroad to the bridge, and also on the east side of North street between the Pennsylvania railroad and the bridge. A resolution covering an improvement of like nature, except that it called for new sidewalks between the railroads, was read three times and it was then urged to have the improvement extended to the bridge. The resolution will come up for passage at the next meeting.

Mr. Coffman appeared before Council and said that the improvement on Sycamore street, which had been "completed" was not up to the standard and that more crushed stone was needed to complete it, although the contractor held receipts showing that the specified 1,000 yards of crushed stone, etc., had been placed on the street.

The engineer was ordered to report on the improvement at the next meeting.

Adjournment was then taken until next Monday night.

of hair in only six weeks."

"Mary, have you read what Baroness Ramsey says about Mrs. Mason's Hair Treatment? In her letter which I saw she declares that it produced a considerable growth of hair in only six weeks."

"Yes, Grace, and lots of our best people here in Washington C. H. used to send to New York for Mrs. Mason's Old English Shampoo Cream before Blackmer & Tanquary our local druggists took the agency for it."

"I am using it myself now, it is so easy to wash one's own hair with it and you know it produces a stimulating and luxurious lather which not only removes the dust, dirt, grit and dandruff from the hair and scalp, but at the same time you are rubbing the tonic properties of this famous herb shampoo into the roots of the hair, which stops it coming out and stimulates the growth—just as water does a plant. It makes the hair so beautifully clean, soft and fluffy that it looks twice as thick as it really is. A 25c. tube is sufficient for three or four shampoos and they offer to return your money if you don't like it."

IN SOCIAL CIRCLES

Relatives and friends here have received announcement cards of the marriage of Mr. Sidney Johnson Stewart and Miss Clara Jane Worley on Saturday, June the 1st, 1912, Duncan, Oklahoma. At home after July 1, Duncan, Oklahoma.

The bride is the daughter of the late Dr. J. L. Worley and granddaughter of Mr. Williams Craig, of this city. She was considered one of the most beautiful girls in Washington's younger set, and possessed an attractive personality, which made her a favorite in all circles. For the past year Miss Worley has been visiting relatives in Duncan and Oklahoma City.

The bridegroom is a successful young business man of Duncan, Oklahoma, where he is building a home for his bride and where they expect to reside permanently.

A host of friends will be interested in hearing of the marriage. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart expect to visit Mrs. Stewart's relatives here next fall.

About 70 women were indebted to Mrs. Austin F. Hopkins yesterday for an afternoon of unusual pleasure and the opportunity to meet an unusual woman, Miss Samuel, of Corea.

Invitations had been extended to the Ladies' Missionary society, the Presbyterian church and others interested in the great work of missions to hear Miss Samuel talk on her nine years' experience among the women of Corea.

Of absorbing interest were the glimpses into the lives of the Coreans, their quaint customs and characteristics, so at variance with western civilization.

Miss Samuel's heart is enlisted in her work and this is her first vacation in nine years. Her gracious and winning personality is no doubt an asset in her noble work.

The afternoon, with its informal talk and piano solos, by request, from the son of the house, Edwards, was altogether social.

Flowers wafted their fragrance through the spacious cool rooms and Mrs. Hopkins served refreshing frappe.

"THARP" IS COMMENCING TO MEAN SOMETHING

We hear wailings of slack business now and then. We hear people chortle that the country is going to the "daschunds."

But it seems that the stores that sell the best merchandise at the lowest prices need never worry.

And that's why the name "Tharp" is commencing to stand for something—and the army of well-dressed, purse-caring men who get "Tharptotized" are my best advertisements.

Let me show you what smart wearing apparel really means.

Kunkle's Friends Think Chances Good

The action of the Republican county convention at Dayton last Saturday in endorsing Judge C. W. Dustin for re-nomination to the Circuit judgeship, was merely a complimentary formality, meaning nothing, according to word from Dayton.

Judge Dustin has already held the office for two terms and does not aspire to re-election.

His endorsement means only that he will be enabled to turn the 29 votes of the delegates chosen by the convention to his favorite for the nomination.

He is on very friendly terms with Judge Kunkle, it is understood, and the action of the convention at Dayton will in no way hurt the latter's candidacy for the nomination.

With Judge Dustin inactive, and with no avowed candidate from Franklin county in the race, friends of Judge Kunkle assert that it is almost a certainty that he will receive the nomination. Political leaders seem to be under the impression that he will be the next Republican candidate for Circuit judge beyond the question of a doubt.—Springfield Sun.

"Swat-the-fly" campaigns for 1912 are well on. The elimination of this filthy and dangerous insect is a desirable end. The house-fly, in addition to being a demonstrated agent in the spreading of typhoid, is strongly suspected, on more or less conclusive evidence, with relation to a large number of infections, including cholera, dysentery, the infantile diarrheas, diphtheria and contagious ophthalmia.

About a billion flies were killed in various campaigns of 1911—a statement which seems impressive until one considers the number of flies which escaped the slaughter. In Washington, D. C., alone, some 7,000,000 flies were killed by the "swat," the trap, drowning, sulphur fumes and even by electrocution.

Dr. Howard, of the Bureau of Entomology, points out that in the congenial climate of that city seven generations of flies may be produced in a single summer. One female fly will lay on an average a batch of 120 eggs; and if all these eggs from a batch laid in the middle of April should hatch and reproduce their kind in like manner, there would be by autumn, from a single female fly, a progeny of nearly six thousand billion. And as each female may lay four batches of eggs, the figures for their unchecked development through a summer stagger the imagination. To "swat the fly" by the billion, therefore, means little, so long as those that survive have unchecked opportunity for breeding.

There is even more weight, therefore, in Stockbridge's statement that during 1911 filthy breeding places were cleaned up, which, if left alone, would have given opportunity for the propagation of incalculable billions. Better than "swatting" the fly is the prevention of its breeding by cleaning up the places where it thrives—the insanitary places, the dead dog and horse allowed to lie unburied until putrid, the uncovered garbage can and the spittoon. How this can be done, can be learned from the health departments of many states and municipalities, and from civic leagues and like organizations.

It is the old old story of an ounce of prevention being worth a pound of cure.

The crusade against the menacing fly should be conducted along lines which recognize that controlling principle.

Wage Earners

Should Seek Largest Income From Labor

By CHARLES L. BAINE

NO ORDINARY wage earner can save enough to escape from the wage-earning class. If by the ordinary wage earner we mean the average wage earner then we are dealing with a general average wage of considerably less than $12 per week for the fifty-two weeks in the year.

The present cost of bare necessities of life prohibits the saving of any considerable amount from the meager wages of the average wage earner. Certainly he cannot save enough in his prime to maintain himself in his old age. This would be true of those without family responsibilities, while average wage earner with a family to support can save nothing at all unless the standard of living of the family is reduced to meet advancing living costs, and then only a small sum which a brief sickness will absorb.

It is the families of the wage earners that populate the country. Wealthy families are not usually noted for large numbers of children. The wage earner's family must be supported before there can be any saving for the future, and when that is done there can be little or nothing left. Our large savings bank deposits as a rule belong to persons who are not in the wage-earning class.

Some wage earners follow trades that are highly skilled and exceptionally well paid. It is possible for some of these to save a portion of their wages, but it should be noted that these are extraordinary wage earners, and even among these none of them may hope to escape the wage earning class by saving alone.

A young man asked a prominent American statesman how to acquire riches, and the answer was: "Put yourself in a position to profit by the labor of other people."

The wage earner who escapes from the wage-earning class does this. His savings are used as the basis of speculation or investment, which, if successful, yields him a profit on the labor of other people.

If the wage earner builds himself a home he is gratifying the home-owning instinct, but if he couples with it a tenement to rent he is developing the desire of the capitalist to profit by the labor of other people.

It is well for the ordinary wage earner to be prudent and to save what he can, but not with the idea of escaping thereby from the wage-earning class, lest his wings be singed by the flame.

The ordinary wage earner will do well to give more effort to improve the condition of the wage-earning class through trade union work and less to an attempt to escape from the wage-earning class by an unsuccessful imitation of the methods of capital.

All wage earners should seek the largest income from their own labor rather than to seek to profit by the labor of their fellows.

Poetry—Today

A PERFECT GENTLEMAN.

He doesn't smoke; he doesn't drink;
He doesn't chew or swear.
His equal would be hard, I think
To find most anywhere.
He doesn't stay out late at night,
He doesn't fuss or fret
When things do not come out just right,
His like you never met.
He doesn't worry when his bills
Come due and he can't pay;
He's never troubled with the ills
That folks meet every day.
He never speaks a sullen word,
Or scolds his wife a bit;
It doesn't matter what's occurred
Or who's to blame for it.
He never plays the ponies and
He doesn't like baseball.
He doesn't care to take a hand
In any game at all.
He doesn't roast the weather man
Or kick about his food;
He doesn't slam the tariff plan
In language that is rude.
He doesn't tear the roof off when
He cannot find his shirt;
He doesn't greet collector men
With talk that's terse and curt.
He doesn't borrow lawnmowers or
Forget to pay his tax,
He never is in trouble for
His methods are not lax.
His folks know right where he is at
Each hour in the day;
He never kicks the alley cat
Or drives the tramp away.
He doesn't make his neighbors mad
By playing on a horn;
A phonograph he never had
To play from night till morn;
He hasn't got a habit that
The gossips can't explore,
He doesn't criticize the hat
His wife brings from the store.
You may think that this is absurd,
And doubt what I have said,
But wait until the end you've heard,

Its great area and the unspoiled natural character of the landscape gardening which has been carried out makes it of the greatest attractiveness. Cliffs, springs, driveways, baseball and tennis grounds, lagoons, lakes and wide sweeps of plain grass and shade combine to make it Springfield's famous playground. It is interesting to know that the park board has sanctioned the construction of a lake of about 100 acres in extent in the low-lying land in the park and that this will in all probability be carried out this year.

Interesting side trips can be made from Springfield by trolley, carriage or automobile, which make it one of the finest excursion centers of the state. Superstition Holds India in the Rut

India has been well named "the unchanging east," and especially where farming is concerned. In the main the native farmer of today is as primitive in his methods as his ancestors were 1000 years ago. He abhors innovations as he does the Bombay plague, writes George Cecil, a well-known English traveler, in Farm and Home. Nothing will induce him to make the soil more fertile, either by irrigating or by manuring it, and as to reclaiming land, such a thing never enters his head. Indeed, any attempt to change the earth's surface is viewed by the village greybeards with the greatest disfavor. "Khuda" (God) has intended India to remain a certain shape, and if an alteration is desired, He will send an earthquake," is their simple way of looking at things. "If you run contrary to the will of 'Khuda,' cholera will ravage the country, and serve you right," is what the priests have to say upon the subject, and as the natives go in deadly fear of their spiritual tyrants it is not surprising that the word of the alleged holy men is law. Meanwhile, the Indian jogs along, content to farm at a net profit which may reach as low as 5 per cent. Were the patient black man to operate on a large scale, his gains might be appreciable. Unfortunately for him, his activities are more or less minute and he has to give long credit.

Agricultural machinery is practically unknown in India. Attempts have been made to introduce steam plows and other tools, but without success. In some cases, the natives were frankly afraid of the "devil machine" as they term any machine driven by steam, while in others they simply refuse to tolerate a contrivance which, doing away with hand labor, deprived them of their living. The cogs disappeared from the wheels, new driving straps mysteriously snapped, bearings became unexpectedly heated, piston rods broke off and driving wheels wobbled suspiciously. In fact, the prejudiced blacks saw to it that everything should go wrong; and, after a few desultory attempts to force the innovations down their throats, semi-enlightened employers withdrew the unpopular steam plow, returning to the hand plow with the biblical wooden plowshare which had served their forebears for generations.

Today, the only farm machinery to be found in India consists of a few solitary turnip cutters of a pattern which has long been obsolete in civilized countries.

Hartman Theater

After breaking all attendance records of the season with the musical comedy "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway," the Hartman Theater Stock Company offers for the week of June 10th, a production that should prove equally attractive—"The Girl of the Golden West." This American drama is probably more widely known than any similar piece brought out in recent years. It certainly ranks among the most successful productions of the modern stage. For power to thrill an audience and to hold it spell bound in the big climaxes, it has few equals. In fact, such is the dramatic quality of its many moments of conflict that it was seized upon by the Italian composer Puccini as the theme for his grand opera which was offered in America by Henry W. Savage under the same name. The scene wherein the heroine plays a game of cards with the sheriff for the life of her lover is a modern stage classic. The entire atmosphere of the piece is stirring and, as developed by David Blasco, breathes with the aliveness of the West. Blanch for some years offered this play to capacity houses at an admission price of $2.00. The rendition by the Hartman Theater Stock Company will be given at the popular scale of summer prices prevailing at the Hartman Theater during the stock engagement. The ability of this stock company is already established throughout central Ohio.

They were chosen from the leading companies which played at the $2.00 scale of prices and their impersonations with the stock company have been of the same quality as their work during the regular winter season. This means to the audience of the stock company a play and interpretation of a kind seen in the regular winter season, at the popular scale of summer prices.

The Origin Of "Got His Goat"

A reader asks the origin and meaning of the expression "got his goat." The only explanation, which we have ever seen, is that once there was a famous race horse that had for his stallmate a goat. A great friendship grew up between the two and they were not happy when separated. The day before the biggest race of the horse's life someone stole the goat. When the race was called the horse was so manifestly out of spirits and from that the judges called the driver and asked him what was the matter with his horse. His answer was, "Somebody has got his goat." The driver had then and there coined an expression destined to become current wherever English is spoken. It means that a man has lost heart, is done for and out of the game.

NO FILTH, NO FLIES.

"Swat-the-fly" campaigns for 1912 are well on. The elimination of this filthy and dangerous insect is a desirable end. The house-fly, in addition to being a demonstrated agent in the spreading of typhoid, is strongly suspected, on more or less conclusive evidence, with relation to a large number of infections, including cholera, dysentery, the infantile diarrheas, diphtheria and contagious ophthalmia.

About a billion flies were killed in various campaigns of 1911—a statement which seems impressive until one considers the number of flies which escaped the slaughter. In Washington, D. C., alone, some 7,000,000 flies were killed by the "swat," the trap, drowning, sulphur fumes and even by electrocution.

Dr. Howard, of the Bureau of Entomology, points out that in the congenial climate of that city seven generations of flies may be produced in a single summer. One female fly will lay on an average a batch of 120 eggs; and if all these eggs from a batch laid in the middle of April should hatch and reproduce their kind in like manner, there would be by autumn, from a single female fly, a progeny of nearly six thousand billion. And as each female may lay four batches of eggs, the figures for their unchecked development through a summer stagger the imagination. To "swat the fly" by the billion, therefore, means little, so long as those that survive have unchecked opportunity for breeding.

There is even more weight, therefore, in Stockbridge's statement that during 1911 filthy breeding places were cleaned up, which, if left alone, would have given opportunity for the propagation of incalculable billions. Better than "swatting" the fly is the prevention of its breeding by cleaning up the places where it thrives—the insanitary places, the dead dog and horse allowed to lie unburied until putrid, the uncovered garbage can and the spittoon. How this can be done, can be learned from the health departments of many states and municipalities, and from civic leagues and like organizations.

It is the old old story of an ounce of prevention being worth a pound of cure.

The crusade against the menacing fly should be conducted along lines which recognize that controlling principle.

The Origin Of "Got His Goat"

A reader asks the origin and meaning of the expression "got his goat." The only explanation, which we have ever seen, is that once there was a famous race horse that had for his stallmate a goat. A great friendship grew up between the two and they were not happy when separated. The day before the biggest race of the horse's life someone stole the goat. When the race was called the horse was so manifestly out of spirits and from that the judges called the driver and asked him what was the matter with his horse. His answer was, "Somebody has got his goat." The driver had then and there coined an expression destined to become current wherever English is spoken. It means that a man has lost heart, is done for and out of the game.

AMMUNITION ALSO SHIPPED

Reports Received by State Department Indicate That Federal Authorities Are Making Little or No Progress in Suppressing Black Uprising. Time Limit For Return of Peace Dove Having Already Expired.

Washington, June 4.—In order to render to the Cuban government every possible assistance in putting down the negro revolution without actually intervening, the state and war departments decided to grant the request of President Gomez for the purchase of 5,000 Krag carbines and 1,000,000 rounds of ammunition. The material will be sold to the Cuban government at practically cost price, and will be taken out of the ordnance stores of the war department. The rifles are being shipped from Watervliet arsenal, New York, and the ammunition from Frankfort arsenal, Philadelphia, to New York city, for prompt dispatch by boat to Havana. The time limit of 10 days which President Gomez asked of the United States on May 24 in which to put down the insurrection has expired.

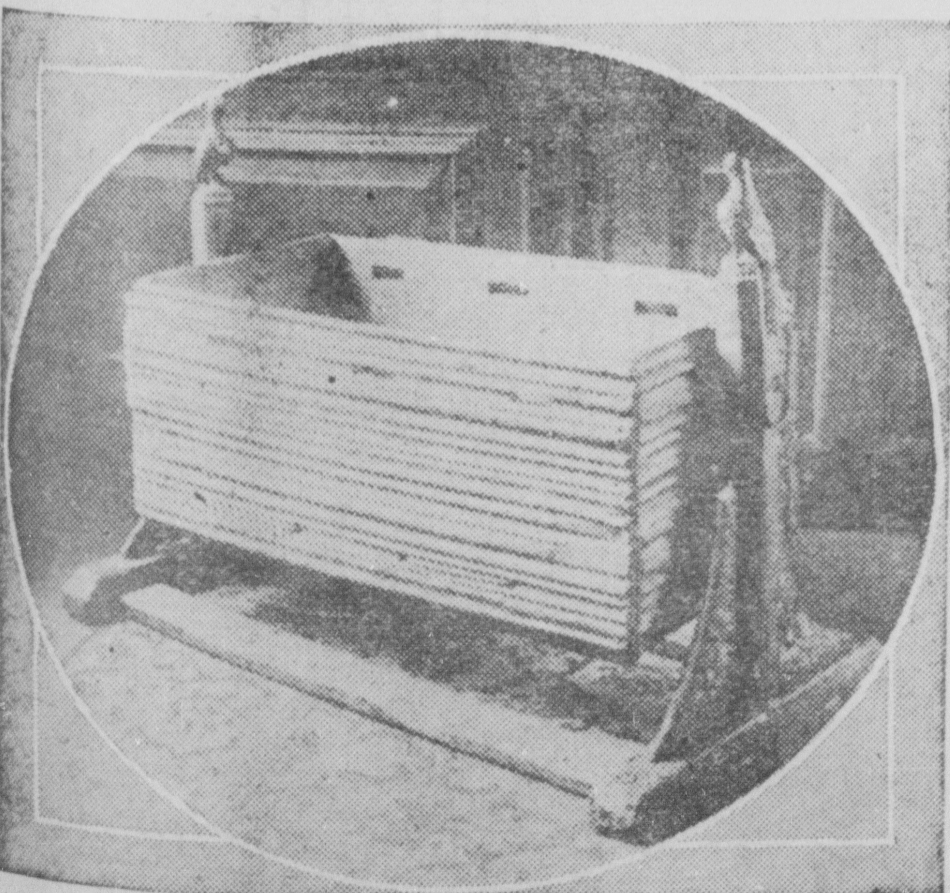

Instead of the revolt having been put down, the situation has gradually grown worse. While the commander of the gunboat Paducah, awaiting developments at El Paya, has orders to land men the moment such action is required in his judgment, definite orders will be rushed from Washington the moment a report is received of harm to Americans. Action on the part of the American government was anticipated momentarily by the request of President Gomez for the purchase of arms.

The Washington authorities are not leaving the solution of the situation to the shipment of army rifles, however. Preparations are being continued in the state, war and navy departments for operations to meet any development.

HOW TO FOOL MAJOR LEAGUE SLUGGERS

Emil Richter of the Chicago Cubs.

"Go, get a curve ball to mix with your smoke." That's the admonition given with the best approved managerial intent with the view of doubling the slab effectiveness of Emil (Reggy) Richter, Cub right-hander. With more zip to his curve Reggy should develop into a whale of a pitcher. He now has the speed; in fact, he tops all the other Cub hurlers in this particular department.

Prior to catching on with the West Side club "Rick" starred in several close games for the Louisville Colonels, where, under the tutelage of Heine Peltz, former Cincinnati backstop, he learned the rudiments of serving an outcurve and outpunch which blended successfully with his known smokeball prowess. Reggy will tell you he possessed little more than speed and a prayer when he was identified with the Rogers Parkers, appearing on semi-pro fields around Chicago.

Sometimes more than "smoke" is needed to win ball games in major society. Hence the instructions given Reggy to keep busy. Much is expected from the giant this year and just as soon as he masters a sharper curve his name will likely be seen at regular and stated intervals in box scores of championship combats. Jimmy Archer, who has been working with Reggy, reports the latter as well advanced in his pursuit of greater curving knowledge.

Statistics Show Right-Handed Pitchers Issued Almost as Many Passes—Leifield Steadiest.

The weird performances of some left-handed pitchers have given bugs the impression that practically all southpaws are of the wild and woolly variety. The averages tell a different story. A comparison of the records of the five leading right-handed pitchers of the major leagues with those of the five best left-handers shows that the control of the southpaws is almost as good as that of the starboard flingers.

National League right-handers were somewhat steadier than left-handers, and the port hurlers of the National were a trifle wilder than those in the American.

Bender, Coombs, Ford, Johnson and Walsh are the leading American league right-handers. The five gave 459 passes in 1,525 innings, or 169 nine-inning games, making an average of little over two passes per game. Gregg, Plank, Collins, Vaughn and White, the leading southpaws, gave 296 passes in 1,056 innings, or an average of two and one-half per game in 117 nine-inning games.

Alexander, Mathewson, Brown, Adams and Suggs, five of the crack right-handers of the National league, averaged two passes for every nine innings. Marquard, Sallee, Wiltse, Rucker and Leiffield, the crack left-handers of the same organization, averaged two and two-thirds bases on balls a game.

Christy Mathewson, the steadiest of National League pitchers, averaged one pass for every nine innings he pitched. Ed Walsh's average was about one and one-half per battle. "Doc" White was the steadiest of all left-handers, with only one and one-half passes per nine innings. Leiffield of the Pirates was the steadiest National left-hander, with two and one-third passes per nine innings.

Connie Mack has announced that he intends to keep Hart, Maggert and Gipe.

The most consistent hitter on Griffith's team to date has been Jack Flynn.

Cornell's baseball prospects are poor. The team lost every infielder by graduation last year.

Aside from his pitchers, Griffith has but three regular left-handed hitters with his Washington team.

George Mullin says he has set his heart on this being his best year. To make it that he will have to go some, all will admit.

George Kahler is it and not Kaier. The Nap pitcher says he is German and that his name contains all the letters that go with it.

Washington sent a scout to sign Pitcher Moran of Washington Lee university, but Hughey Jennings beat him to the prize and landed Moran for Detroit.

Tom Stark, last year manager of Monmouth and this year slated to manage Rock Island until that town lost its franchise, has signed with Wiehita.

An investigation of the baseball trust is all very well, but many a ball player is in favor of the conviction of umpires for unreasonable restraint of bases on balls.

Complainants are already coming from the Detroit inner circle that Outfielder Hank Perry, secured from Providence, lacks ambition and he may not fill the bill as Jennings expected.

Colonel Roosevelt Declares He Is Impossible as Chairman.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., June 4.—After a lengthy conference with the main leaders of his campaign, Colonel Roosevelt announced that he would not stand for Senator Root as temporary chairman of the Republican national convention. The colonel came out strong against the senator in a long statement which was the product of his conference with Senator Joseph M. Dixon, George W. Perkins, Gifford Pinchot, Medill McCormick, Truxton Beale of California, Andrew Rahn and Frank Kellogg of Minnesota.

Recalling that in his belief "Mr. Root has ranged himself against the men who stand for progressive principles within the Republican party, and that he is put forward by the bosses and the representatives of special privilege," the colonel says that he is unalterably opposed to the senator as temporary chairman.

The explanation of the colonel's change of front given here is that he was stirred up by the efforts of William Barnes, Jr., to gain assurance from delegates that they would support Mr. Root.

President Taft Against Star Chamber Sessions at Chicago.

Chicago, June 4.—Colonel Harry S. Efforts by S. R. B. Howell of Nebraska, Thomas R. ANOTHER BOOTLEGGER IS GIVEN $150 FINE

Ralph ("Gopher") Smith Pleads
Guilty to Illegal Selling of Intoxicants--Must Pay Part of
Fine and Leave City Not Later
Than Saturday Night.

Ralph Smith, familiarly known as "Gopher" Smith occupied the attention of Mayor Harve W. Smith Monday, and as a result was fined $150 and the costs upon a charge of bootlegging—a charge to which he had entered a plea of guilty.

Certain evidence which developed in connection with the Bainter-Denner bootlegging case, was investigated by the police and a strong case was soon woven about Smith, and he was locked up charged with selling intoxicating liquors.

The web of evidence continued to grow until Mayor Smith had in his possession a long list of names of persons who had either purchased booze from the man or knew that he had been in business for some time.

Bainter and Denner were not backward in giving up a large portion of what they knew concerning Smith, and when he was confronted with the evidence he weakened and admitted that he had been in the bootlegging business.

Upon his plea of guilty Mayor Smith announced the fine and suspended all but $25 and the costs, providing the man would pay the amount and leave the city for all time.

This was readily agreed to and Smith was released to secure the amount required before he is to leave town, the hour of his departure being set at not later than sun down Saturday night.

Smith is said to have been in the gang up the creek a week ago last Saturday night, "drumming up" trade for Bainter and Denner.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

To Stay Well Sleep Enough.
A sufficient amount of sleep is an important factor in keeping well. Sleep is the only form of complete rest. There is a less amount of blood flowing over the brain surface in our sleeping than in our waking hours. During sleep the brain cells regain their strength. Good, sound, healthy, dreamless sleep in a well ventilated room is indeed "nature's sweet restorer." One should try to form the habit of retiring at the same hour every night when possible, for sleep does the most good when it is regular. The amount of sleep required depends upon the individual. Children, of course, require more than adults. The child of four needs twelve hours, the boy or girl of fourteen needs nine and the average adult eight. Too high a pillow is a frequent cause for restlessness, and when this is the case the pillow should be removed or a low one substituted.

Girl Saved From Horrible Death

While about the B. & O. station a few days ago, L. M. Maag, who carries the mail from and to the trains, saved the life of some unknown young lady by pushing her quickly off of the D. T. & I. track just as the morning train rushed past.

The C. H. & D. had just arrived and the young lady was standing on the platform, evidently looking for some one on the train. She was so engrossed in scanning the faces at the windows that she did not notice that she stood directly between the rails of the D. T. & I. and that the oncoming train was within a few feet of her.

Realizing that death was certain unless the girl was rescued, Maag sprang forward and shoved her aside and leaped to safety just in time to save himself.

ANOTHER BOOTLEGGER IS GIVEN $150 FINE

Ralph ("Gopher") Smith Pleads
Guilty to Illegal Selling of Intoxicants—Must Pay Part of
Fine and Leave City Not Later
Than Saturday Night.

Ralph Smith, familiarly known as "Gopher" Smith occupied the attention of Mayor Harve W. Smith Monday, and as a result was fined $150 and the costs upon a charge of bootlegging—a charge to which he had entered a plea of guilty.

Certain evidence which developed in connection with the Bainter-Denner bootlegging case, was investigated by the police and a strong case was soon woven about Smith, and he was locked up charged with selling intoxicating liquors.

The web of evidence continued to grow until Mayor Smith had in his possession a long list of names of persons who had either purchased booze from the man or knew that he had been in business for some time.

Bainter and Denner were not backward in giving up a large portion of what they knew concerning Smith, and when he was confronted with the evidence he weakened and admitted that he had been in the bootlegging business.

Upon his plea of guilty Mayor Smith announced the fine and suspended all but $25 and the costs, providing the man would pay the amount and leave the city for all time.

This was readily agreed to and Smith was released to secure the amount required before he is to leave town, the hour of his departure being set at not later than sun down Saturday night.

Smith is said to have been in the gang up the creek a week ago last Saturday night, "drumming up" trade for Bainter and Denner.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

To Stay Well Sleep Enough.

A sufficient amount of sleep is an important factor in keeping well. Sleep is the only form of complete rest. There is a less amount of blood flowing over the brain surface in our sleeping than in our waking hours. During sleep the brain cells regain their strength. Good, sound, healthy, dreamless sleep in a well ventilated room is indeed "nature's sweet restorer." One should try to form the habit of retiring at the same hour every night when possible, for sleep does the most good when it is regular. The amount of sleep required depends upon the individual. Children, of course, require more than adults. The child of four needs twelve hours, the boy or girl of fourteen needs nine and the average adult eight. Too high a pillow is a frequent cause for restlessness, and when this is the case the pillow should be removed or a low one substituted.

The president of Hewitt Bros., Soap Company, Dayton, Ohio, says: "Buy two cakes of Easy Task soap for ten cents; use one bar and if it isn't just what we say it is, you get your dime back in a jiffy." It is a strong claim to say that Easy Task soap cuts the work of washday in half, but the fact can be proven by the evidence of thousands of delighted women.

Girl Saved From Horrible Death

While about the B. & O. station a few days ago, L. M. Maag, who carries the mail from and to the trains, saved the life of some unknown young lady by pushing her quickly off of the D. T. & I. track just as the morning train rushed past.

The C. H. & D. had just arrived and the young lady was standing on the platform, evidently looking for some one on the train. She was so engrossed in scanning the faces at the windows that she did not notice that she stood directly between the rails of the D. T. & I. and that the oncoming train was within a few feet of her.

Realizing that death was certain unless the girl was rescued, Maag sprang forward and shoved her aside and leaped to safety just in time to save himself.

Two New York Society Women In Up to Date Riding Clothes

Photos copyright, 1912, by American Press Association.

PIPING ROCK horse show grounds are in the territory on the north shore of Long Island, which is given over to the summer homes of wealthy New Yorkers. The Piping Rock gymkhana races are one of the sporting events of the season and are largely attended by people in "smart" society. The "freak" events of such a meeting are patterned after those of the Anglo-Indian sporting institution from which the name is borrowed. Those at Piping Rock this season included a hand-in-hand race, in which a man and woman attempted to ride in and out among flags; a bending race, in which the riders dodged flags placed in their paths, and an egg and spoon race, in which each rider tried to carry an egg in a spoon a given distance. A "Gretna Green race" was run by riders in couples, the woman leading an unsaddled horse to her partner, who saddled him, mounted him and rode with the woman to a table, where he dismounted and lighted a cigarette before remounting and riding with his partner to the finish. The photograph shows two winners among the women—Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock (at right of picture), who was second in the Gretna Green race, and Miss Emily Randolph (at left), who won the egg and spoon event.

ENGLAND HAS TIMUR RUBY

It has just become known that the famous Timur ruby, known in the days of the Mogul empire as the "Tribute of the World," is now among the British crown jewels. Some experts had supposed it was lost. The gem is a royal match to the Kohinoor diamond, the "Mountain of Light," which has been in the British regalia since 1850.

The Timur ruby is the largest in existence, weighing in its present shape a trifle over 352 carats. It is uncut, but polished. The first account of this ruby is in 1398, when the Ameer Timur, known in Europe as Tamerlane, plundered the Indian city of Delhi, and seized a great stock of princely gems. Tamerlane bequeathed the Timur ruby to his son and successor, Mir Shah Rukh, who passed it down in turn to his son, Mirza Ulugh Beg.

The ruby fell into the hands of a Persian king at the downfall of the Tartar empire. In 1612 the stone was presented by Shah Abbas I, greatest of the Sofavi kings of Persia, to the Mogul Emperor Jehangir. At that time it had engraved on it the names of Tamerlane and his son and Shah Abbas. The Emperor Jehangir obliterated them and engraved on the ruby the names of himself and his father, Akbar the Great.

Nur Jehan, favorite wife of Jehangir, told him he ought not to have scraped off Tamerlane's name, to which the Persian monarch replied: "This jewel will more certainly hand down my name to posterity than any written history. The House of Timur may fall, but as long as there is a king this gem will be his."

Shah Jehan later put his name on the ruby and set the stone in the famous Peacock Throne. There it remained until Nadir Shah invaded India and sacked Delhi in 1739. He carried off the Timur ruby and 25,000 other gems. When the Nadir was assassinated in 1747 the ruby descended to Ahmad Shah, who founded the kingdom of Afghanistan. His son surrendered it as well as the Kohinoor diamond to Maharaja Ranjit Singh, and the English got the two jewels when they annexed the Punjab in 1840.

FATHER IN A GLASS CASE

Son Earns Nimble Sixpence by Exhibiting "Old Man" as Curiosity.

Paris.—Viverlos, in Auvergne, boasts of a man who for twenty-five years has preserved his father's body in a glass case in his drawing room.

Jean Granet, who has just retired at the age of 70 from his post as secretary to the local mayor, keeps a museum at his house, in which are found mummies, animal and human, and grim curios connected with the undertaking business. The most ghoulish exhibit, however, is the perfectly preserved body of his father, Robert Granet.

To all who pay a franc the son will disclose his father's body, explaining the minutest changes that have occurred.

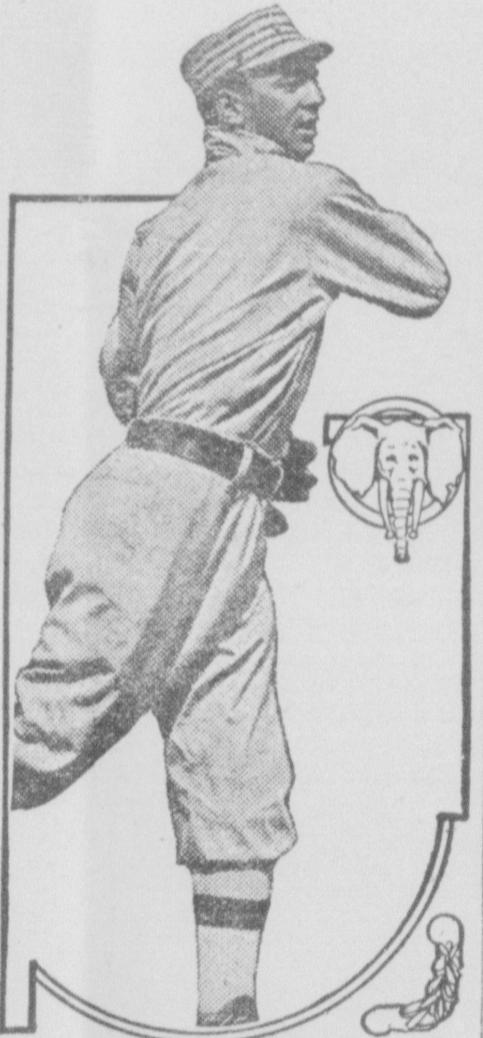

In order to surmount a legal difficulty Granet, whose house abuts on the local cemetery, had a small mausoleum constructed on the consecrated ground and connected by a passage with his museum.

MACK'S INFIELD COST $10.85

Clever Manager Secured Shortstop Barry, Eddie Collins and Frank Baker for Car Fare.

Did any one ever tell what Connie Mack paid for that magnificent infield of the Athletics—the one that did so much toward winning the world's championship for that club? Of course not? Well, it actually cost the clever manager of the Philadelphia team just $10.85. This is surprising, particularly when it is recollected that such a fabulous sum as $22,500 was paid for O'Toole by Pittsburgh and the Giants willingly gave $11,000 for Marquard.

Connie is recognized as one of the shrewdest traders in the whole baseball business, and if he ever went in for swapping horses he'd have David Harum yelling for help. He is an economist whenever it is possible, and it was possible when he secured Shortstop Barry, Second Baseman Collins and Third Baseman Baker. Eddie Col-

TWO FARM BOYS, A COLLEGE PROFESSOR AND SOME PIGS

Interesting Story of What Jim Noble and His Chum Learned About Judging Hogs While On a Visit To the State University.

(By C. S. Plumb, College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.)

Jim sat on the top board of the barnyard fence along with his chum.

Jim Noble was the son of a Clarke county farmer. At the age of 14 he entered the township high school. He was large for his years, had red hair, a freckled face, and when he smiled showed a fine set of white teeth. He didn't like to study—some boys don't—but he had a new experience in this high school. The principal had interested the pupils in farming. He gave them daily talks on farm plants and animals, on the soil and other things important to rural life. He had interested the farmers of the township in his work. At his suggestion, many of the larger boys grew small fields of potatoes or corn, to study the crop and the cost of producing it. The youngsters were keen in their interest in this. They also kept their fathers pretty well stirred up on the subjects of seedtime and harvest. Surely this was no ordinary high school.

Jim loved the farm. His father owned two hundred acres of choice land. Mr. Noble grew corn and oats and clover. He also fed hogs and steers. He was just an ordinary farmer and hadn't thought much about new ways. But this new teacher set Jim jumbos on Saturday to visit the Agricultural College to see the live stock, and consent was readily given. They also arranged with Mr. Wilson, their teacher, to write to the University about their going over on Saturday. On Thursday Mr. Wilson received this letter:

"Dear Mr. Wilson—I shall be home on Saturday and will be pleased to show the boys the live stock. We are always glad to see young people at the University, especially if they are interested in institutions like ours. You say these boys wish in particular to see the hogs, so I will meet them at the hog barn at about 10 o'clock. Cordially yours, C. S. PLUMB."

Saturday morning found Jim and Luke walking up the Neil Avenue University drive just as the hand of the clock on University Hall was pointing at 10, and, as Mr. Wilson had directed, they turned off near Horticultural Hall and went down to a wooden barn which they saw a short distance before them. There they found the professor. He gave them a friendly greeting and at once began to show them about. The basement was used exclusively for hogs, and there were to thinking; then the boy began to ask his father questions. These were about corn and hogs and many other things. Jim was getting interested and so were the rest of the family.

One beautiful April day Jim sat on the top board of the barnyard fence, along with his chum, Luke Story. The Noble and Story farms joined and the two boys went to school together. They were looking at a bunch of hogs in the yard. Mr. Noble bought up young pigs in the neighborhood at weaning time and fattened them on corn. He would buy anything in the pig line that was healthy.

While Jim and Luke were looking at the pigs, the latter said, "Jim, what'd you think of Mr. Wilson's story 'bout those different kinds of pigs over 't the State University? He says they keep some hogs there for bacon and some for lard. He says farmers ought to keep hogs of the same type—whatever that means—that some pigs kill out better'n others. He knows, for he used to be a student over there." "Well," said Jim, "I've had a sneakin' notion for some time father wasn't feedin' quite the stuff he ought to. Those pigs don't look right to me. There's red pigs and white ones and black ones and long snouts on some and long legs on others. We know that farmer's don't want red and yellow and white corn, or short ears and long ears in the same load."

"Jim," said Luke, "let's do something—let's go over to Columbus on Saturday and see the Agricultural College and the hogs they breed. Mr. Wilson told me they bred the very best and won fine prizes with them at the big international live stock shows at Chicago." "All right; I'm with you," said Jim. "Let's get Mr. Wilson to write over to the professor who 'as charge of the hogs and see if he won't show them to us."

That noon the boys told their parents that they wanted to go to Co-

many pens and yards with pigs in them all about the building.

One big black boar was driven from his house into the yard, where the boys could see him. "That," said the professor, "is a Berkshire. Notice that he is all black except for a little white on his legs, his face, and tail. Those are what are called 'six white points,' though all Berkshires do not have them. They usually have some white on the face, but sometimes a leg or two or the tail may be all black. You will notice, boys, that this hog has a short nose and that his ears stand erect. You can always tell a Berkshire by these colors and that kind of head and ears."

"Now here in this yard is another pig that is very different from the Berkshire. That is a Duroc-Jersey. You see that this sow is all red in color. Some are a light sandy red and others are a dark cherry red, and still others are a medium between the two. This last shade is the most popular. You will notice that the nose and face of this Duroc-Jersey is longer and straighter than the Berkshire's. Some of these red hogs have noses as much too long as some Berkshire's are too short. This nose is about right for the breed. The ear of the Duroc-Jersey droops over instead of standing up. If it were just right it would stand up from the head about two-thirds its length, pointing forward, and then the upper third or tip would bend or break over. That is what is called a fancy point with a breed. These things of color, and shape of head, and position and kind of ear, are very important in describing breeds."

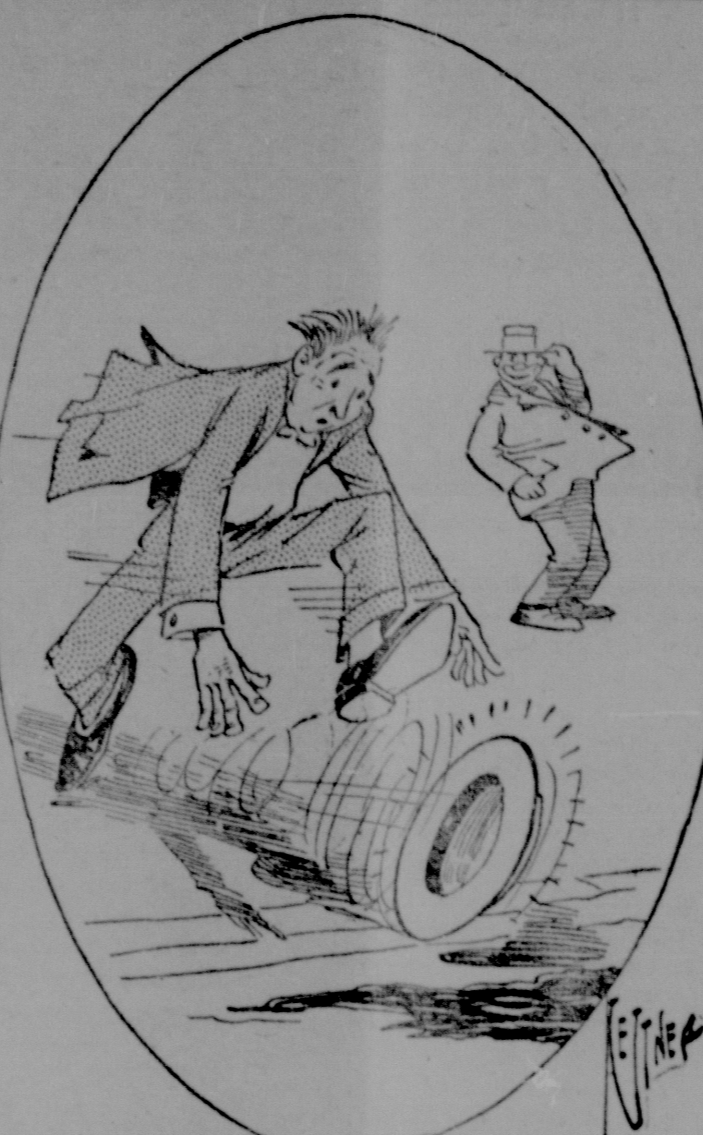

"I've seen some of that kind near our home," said Jim. "Mr. Johnson has some and so has Will Niles. Father is feeding some pigs now, too, with some red ones among them, but some of them have considerable black on them."

While Jim and Luke were looking at the pigs, the latter said, "Jim, what'd you think of Mr. Wilson's story 'bout those different kinds o' pigs over 't the State University? He says they keep some hogs there for bacon and some for lard. He says farmers ought to keep hogs of the same type—whatever that means—that some pigs kill out better'n others. He knows, for he used to be a student over there." "Well," said Jim, "I've had a sneakin' notion for some time father wasn't feedin' quite the stuff he ought to. Those pigs don't look right to me. There's red pigs and white ones and black ones and long snouts on some and long legs on others. We know that farmer's don't want red and yellow and white corn, or short ears and long ears in the same load."

"Jim," said Luke, "let's do something—let's go over to Columbus on Saturday and see the Agricultural College and the hogs they breed. Mr. Wilson told me they bred the very best and won fine prizes with them at the big international live stock shows at Chicago." "All right; I'm with you," said Jim. "Let's get Mr. Wilson to write over to the professor who is in charge of the hogs and see if he won't show them to us."

many pens and yards with pigs in them all about the building.

One big black bear was driven from his house into the yard, where the boys could see him. "That," said the professor, "is a Berkshire. Notice that he is all black except for a little white on his legs, his face, and tail. Those are what are called 'six white points,' though all Berkshires do not have them. They usually have some white on the face, but sometimes a leg or two or the tail may be all black. You will notice, boys, that this hog has a short nose and that his ears stand erect. You can always tell a Berkshire by these colors and that kind of head and ears."

"Now here in this yard is another pig that is very different from the Berkshire. That is a Duroc-Jersey. You see that this sow is all red in color. Some are a light sandy red and others are a dark cherry red, and still others are a medium between the two. This last shade is the most popular. You will notice that the nose and face of this Duroc-Jersey is longer and straighter than the Berkshire's. Some of these red hogs have noses as much as long as some Berkshire's are too short. This nose is about right for the breed. The ear of the Duroc-Jersey droops over instead of standing up. If it were just right it would stand up from the head about two-thirds its length, pointing forward, and then the upper third or tip would bend or break over. That is what is called a fancy point with a breed. These things of color, and shape of head, and position and kind of ear, are very important in describing breeds."

"I've seen some of that kind near our home," said Jim. "Mr. Johnson has some and so has Will Niles. Father is feeding some pigs now, too, with some red ones among them, but some of them have considerable black on them."

Mexico's Great Oil Producer

An oil well that is capable of producing in one day a crude product valued at $55,000, which is more than the president of the United States formerly received as annual salary, is well worth being given a leading place in the list of the world's natural phenomena. In the Potrero del Llano field, situated about 100 miles to the southeast of Tampico, Mexico, is a well of the gusher type, which is pronounced by oil experts to be the largest producer known in the world's history of that industry. It has demonstrated that it is not only capable of producing 110,000 barrels of oil for one day, but that it can keep up the performance for an interminable duration; at least, it kept it up for three months without the slightest decrease of output, and during the period it ran wild it flooded a big scope of country with the fluid. It was tested, after being throttled down for several months to a flow of about 25,000 barrels daily and the gauge showed that it still retained its original output of 110,000 barrels daily.

Based on a value of only 50 cents per barrel for the oil, the well is capable of producing a revenue of $55,000 daily, or $20,075,000 in one year.

The proved capacity of the Potrero del Llano well is more than 40,000,000 barrels of oil per annum.

It ran uncontrolled for three months, and of the more than 10,000,000 barrels of oil that it shot high in the air during that period only 2,600,000 barrels were saved. During that whole three months day and night shifts of the most expert oil machinery and equipment men in the United States were busy trying to bring the roaring, pulsating giant under control.

Finally a great steel valve, with a strength capable of withstanding 2,400 pounds pressure to the square inch was placed upon the mouth of the well by means of powerful equipment. Even then the valve could only be partly closed. The cost of harnessing the well and the construction of storage reservoirs was upward of $500,000.

Ambulance Car In Annual Tour

The picturesque feature of the Four States Tour which leaves Indianapolis July 9 on a twelve days' jaunt through Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky, touching this city, will be a hospital car with a history.

Although not a fatality nor a near-fatality resulted from the first annual tour last summer, Chairman D. S. Menasco of the runs and tours committee of the Indiana Automobile Manufacturers' Association has made arrangements for an ambulance car with full regulation United States surgical equipment to accompany the Hoosier cavalcade as it invades the east on its notable run.

The ambulance car, which will be furnished by the Premier Motor Manufacturing Company, is the famous prairie schooner, which attracted so much attention on the ocean to ocean trip made by the Premier last year. During the transcontinental tour the car acted as baggage-carrier, but in its next official appearance it is to undergo a complete change.

The ambulance car is but one of the interesting features which the fifty entries will display.

An automobile output of over sixty million dollars will be represented by the cars in the big caravan.

Summer School Enrolls Over 1,000

An attendance of at least 1000 is expected at the Ohio University Summer School which will open on June 17 and will come to a close on July 26. Last year the attendance broke all records when it reached 883 but there is every indication that perhaps 200 more will be enrolled this summer. From the vast amount of correspondence that has been handled through the executive offices the prediction is reached.

This summer the university will feature the teaching of agriculture. Next year all teachers must be fitted to instruct in this branch.

The agricultural work at the university will be in charge of Drs. Matheny and W. F. Copeland. Experts from Wooster Experiment Station and from the United States Department of Agriculture have been engaged to give special lectures. These specialists are among the best in the country and their lectures alone should prove attractive to hundreds of teachers and others.—Athens Messenger.

Quite a number from Fayette county are among those enrolled for the summer school.

Crimp Given Bad Banking

The biggest and best job yet undertaken by congress is the inquiry into the alleged manipulation of banking, finance and credits. Both parties vied with each other in supporting it. The investigation has begun in a way to prove that it will be drastic, says Herbert Myrick, editor-in-chief of Farm and Home.

This probe into the alleged money trust comes not a whit too soon. The Stanley committee's report shows that the 23 directors of the steel trust represent the controlling interest in nearly 55 per cent of the industrial and railroad affairs of the nation. Add to this the oil-tobacco group, and the power of the gentry is too great for any self-governing people to permit unrestrained. To what extent these interests manipulate the people's money and credits is now to be revealed.

The first step requires 30,000 banks—all there are—to submit sworn statements in answer to searching questions. The replies will indicate where and when the people should go deeper. Later, the committee will inquire into clearing house methods. It is officially stated that, following the establishment of the clearing house at Buffalo N. Y. some years ago, "the increase in profits on collections, to the twelve banks interested, over the former method of doing business free of charge, paid the dividends of all the banks each year, and whatever profit was made on loans and discounts was used to build up the surplus." How far has that form of combination become general? The inquiry should help proper banking, benefit depositors and legitimate borrowers and promote sound business whether little or big. But it will put a crimp in practices that are not right.

Crimp Given Bad Banking

The biggest and best job yet undertaken by congress is the inquiry into the alleged manipulation of banking, finance and credits. Both parties vied with each other in supporting it. The investigation has begun in a way to prove that it will be drastic, says Herbert Myrick, editor-in-chief of Farm and Home.

This probe into the alleged money trust comes not a whit too soon. The Stanley committee's report shows that the 23 directors of the steel trust represent the controlling interest in nearly 55 per cent of the industrial and railroad affairs of the nation. Add to this the oil-tobacco group, and the power of the gentry is too great for any self-governing people to permit unrestrained. To what extent these interests manipulate the people's money and credits is now to be revealed.

The first step requires 30,000 banks—all there are—to submit sworn statements in answer to searching questions. The replies will indicate where and when the people should go deeper. Later, the committee will inquire into clearing house methods. It is officially stated that, following the establishment of the clearing house at Buffalo N. Y. some years ago, "the increase in profits on collections, to the twelve banks interested, over the former method of doing business free of charge, paid the dividends of all the banks each year, and whatever profit was made on loans and discounts was used to build up the surplus." How far has that form of combination become general? The inquiry should help proper banking, benefit depositors and legitimate borrowers and promote sound business whether little or big. But it will put a crimp in practices that are not right.

China's Letter of Thanks

From China came recently to the American Red Cross an official letter of thanks for relief sent to the famine sufferers. It is six feet square and of red silk. Translated, the inscription in the center reads: "You have supplied a multitude of our people with provisions;" on the right: "To the Chinese and foreign relief associations;" on the left: "Respectfully presented by Yuchi, representing the municipal bureau of the city for the relief of famine sufferers of the Mengchen district."
